Blessing children in Mexico and other countries

Angelica and Rayito stir things up in the kitchen.

We're enjoying a delicious Christmas dinner.

Can we open them now?? Please??

I enjoyed speaking to the children and staff at the Christmas party!

My Dear Partner:

God bless you! You outdid yourselves again this year and I thank you with all my heart. The children have asked that I express their thanks to you. It is abundantly clear that you are filled with great love for Jesus!

To our great joy, Elias and Rayito (administrators of the home in Gómez Palacio) made the long round-trip, even in a crippled van and loaded with as many kids as they could safely pack in. It has been a number of years since they were able to be with us, so our Christmas was very special this year. Thank you for making it possible for them to come. The trip took longer than usual because they had to drive slowly. I ask for your prayers concerning a new van (purchased in Mexico) for Hogar Del Rey.

Rayito expressed her gratefulness for your prayers during her bout with cancer. I did not know for sure how serious her situation was until I talked with her. She said the doctors had given her no hope. They told her that she would die! But thank God, the doctors have now confirmed that there is no sign of cancer in her body and her next checkup is at least six months down the road—just a routine checkup! Thank you for your prayers. Praise the Lord.

The medical missionary students had their first exam last week and, in spite of butterflies in their tummies, they did quite well!

My beloved ones, don't ever limit your joy or fail to rejoice in the wonderful experience of knowing our Lord Jesus! (Phil. 3:1 TPT) Thank you for loving Jesus and His precious children.

Happy New Year!

The kids are lined up to claim their gifts. Alexa and Claudia apparently spotted something very funny because they are enjoying a hearty laugh!

Felipe (left) is quite cautious about losing his place in the game of musical chairs.

I am blessed with a houseful of children, a skilled management team and loyal, praying and giving Partners! Thank you, Jesus!
